Foreword

There is a definite goal which each man seeks in procuring a place in society. The fulfillment of this goal is two-fold—the individual's self-motivation in securing his goals and the institution which he feels is worthy of these attainments. Thus, his place in society is a mirror reflecting how well he has utilized the opportunities set forth by the institution.

If worth had not been an attribute of Winston-Salem State College, it probably would not have reached its 75th year of matriculation. Had it not offered to its student body and faculty members all of the fields that comprise a full and wholesome education which includes cultural, social, religious, and academic opportunities, chances are it would not possess its present status.

If it had not given to us all of the values we were seeking as future educators, we, the Senior Class of 1968, would not hold our Alma Mater, Winston-Salem State College would not have flourished to the apex of success that it is now.

Now that our wishes have been fulfilled and our values heightened, we, the Senior Class of 1968, can truthfully say that we have attained "Excellence Without Excuse." Therefore, we give full dedication to Winston-Salem State College in commemoration to its 75th Anniversary.

As we attempt to implement Winston-Salem State College's immortal motto, "Enter To Learn, Depart To Serve," we will always repeat in full chorus:

*"As we go forth from ole S. C.
A song of love we sing to thee
And praises to the memories
Of days at dear State College."*

Congratulations State College!!!

Kenneth R. Williams, President

Greetings:

As we celebrate our Seventy-fifth Anniversary and dedicate ourselves to the continued upward climb in the development of Winston-Salem State College, let us feel pride in our accomplishments and, at the same time, charge ourselves to the task of continued betterment.

We are experiencing a time of growth and change. Improvement of faculty, staff, student body, and physical facilities is a reality which fully justifies the faith and confidence I feel in the future potential of our College. By working together, we can continue in this evolvment. I pledge my energies to a goal of excellence. Will you join me in this endeavor?

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Kenneth R. Williams". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Kenneth" being more prominent and the last name "Williams" following in a similar style.

Kenneth R. Williams

Miss Winston-Salem State College 1967-68

Greetings,

The 1967-68 academic school year has indeed been a memorable one for the Winston-Salem State College family. Not only has it been a year filled with joyous activities and academic achievements, but this year also marked the 75th year of the college as a participant in the nation's higher education program.

We should feel honored to be a part of an institution which has, for 75 years, given service to men and women who have passed through the golden gates of ole S.C. and obtained noted positions throughout the country. This alone should make our hearts swell with pride.

I am proud to be a part of this fine institution and grateful to you for electing me Miss WSSC for this Diamond Jubilee Year.

Throughout the coming years, may you always cherish and hold high the ideals of Winston-Salem State College, our Alma Mater.

Sincerely yours,

Barbara Tuck

In Appreciation

Working with the new breed was not all peaches and cream, but Mr. Jefferson Humphrey possessed the patience and endurance to inspire us as newly-entering students to make a successful beginning. He had problems, but as our Freshman Class advisor he overcame them all with a smile. We were successful in every class project endeavored under his guidance. We appreciate him greatly.

For two years Mr. William Rice served as our class advisor. As sophomores and juniors we were faced with new problems that were all alleviated with the aid of Mr. Rice. We grew academically strong, and our moral, social, and religious roles were heightened. Words cannot give him all of the credit and praise he deserves. We thank and appreciate him.

As our Senior Class advisor, Mrs. Vivienne Conley was taxed with the many last minute details that consisted of joys as well as sorrows. In this one year she advised us to redirect our aims toward the very highest goals possible and to reshape our attitudes if they showed signs of slothfulness, greed, and selfishness. By taking her advice, we are now ready to assume our roles as educators. May God bless her!

Afterthought

In these pages we have tried to give an account of the birth of a great institution—Winston-Salem State College. It was born seventy-five years ago and has proven to be an asset to everyone who enters its portals. Its growth has been miraculous. Its products have prospered greatly and the regrets for its birth have been none. We hail its growth and endurance, for without having offered us so much we would not be ready to face the world that stares at us with dim yet glowing eyes. We salute her—her faculty, administrative staff, the student body and other personnel.

We feel that no single page, word, face or object has been wasteful to the portrayal of Winston-Salem State College as our dear Alma Mater. We feel that its worth can only be heightened by products, whether students or projects as this yearbook, that reveal in many ways the many abilities that it developed in us and the many talents that it created in us. We believe that every worry, headache, and heartaches was very worthwhile. Joy seemed to accompany our every move. The end product was visualized as a future masterpiece. Every dark cloud that seemed to hover above our heads during the preparation of this book was overcome. Now we are proud to say that we were able to brighten up the seventy-fifth candle placed upon the rose-colored icing of Winston-Salem State College.

Co-operation was not lacking in any way. Every member of the Senior class wanted to take a part in the authorship of this yearbook. Suggestions and offers were numerous. This is evidence of the deep love embedded in the hearts of the senior class for our own Winston-Salem State College.

A thousand pages could not give her complete justice. Each building represents a landmark that only time can erase. Each face seen on these pages represents one who is searching for knowledge or one who is trying to promote and administer learning activities. Each activity or organization pictured here is an example of the varied areas designed by this school for social, academic, religious and economic promotion.

It has been a pleasure to prepare this yearbook. We hope that these pages have proven why Winston-Salem State College has endured for seventy-five years. It is our prayer that she will live on in full glory for another and another seventy-five years.

HAPPY SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY!

Lawrence Starks, Jr.
Editor-in-Chief

Thanks

Special expressions of appreciation extended to Mr. Clarence Nottingham because he gave many hours of his time photographing and re-photographing the students, faculty and buildings for this Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Yearbook. He was not delayed by the falling snows, heavy rains or icy-cold weather. His patience and endurance were remarkable. Success in this project would have been impossible without him. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts, Mr. Nottingham.

Words of thanks must be given to Dr. Jacqueline Shepperson who willingly permitted the yearbook staff to use her desk, typewriter and other supplies and machines; Coach Clarence Gaines and Mr. James Fields who photographed many people and features for this yearbook; and, Mr. Luix Overbea, who advised the staff on the best journalistic styles, letters, and lay-outs. Success would not have been so great without the aid of these individuals. Many thanks to each of you.
